

Copeland Group: Statement of Tax Principles

Published September 2024 in relation to the Financial Year ending 30 September 2024

This document is published in compliance with the UK Finance Act 2016, SCHEDULE 19.

COMPANY PROFILE

Copeland (the “Company”) was divested from Emerson in May 2023. Now a stand-alone enterprise building on more than a century in the Heating, Ventilation, Air Conditioning and Refrigeration (“HVACR”) industry, the Company is focusing on innovative, sustainable and efficient HVACR technologies and integrated solutions – including compression, electronics, controls and monitoring – for the residential, commercial, industrial and transportation industries. Copeland has over 18,000 global employees, 27 manufacturing facilities and 12 Engineering, Research & Development locations worldwide and does business in more than 40 countries.

COPELAND’S APPROACH TO TAXES

Governance & Risk Management

The principles governing oversight of the Company’s tax matters are consistent with those underlying the Company’s commercial and reputational practices, Ethics and Compliance Program, and corporate governance processes. These ensure that the Company’s businesses and employees operate within the applicable legal statutes in the countries in which it manufactures and markets its products and services.

The Company is generally subject to taxation in the jurisdictions in which it operates, and is exposed to tax legislation that is complex and subject to interpretation by management and tax authorities. Copeland has implemented internal policies and practices that establish a process for assessing, reporting and monitoring tax risks. The Company’s tax processes are subject to the same level of internal control and external audit review as other Copeland activities. Where appropriate, the Company consults qualified external advisors to assist its own qualified tax employees in ensuring compliance with the Company’s obligations and assessing its tax risks.

The Audit Committee of the Board of Managers provides oversight of the Company’s risk management and its compliance with legal and regulatory requirements, among other areas. The Audit Committee reviews with management the Company’s policies and practices with respect to risk identification, assessment and management. The major financial risk exposures, including tax, are presented to the Audit Committee by the Chief Financial Officer.

Acceptable Level of Tax Risk

The Company is committed to conducting its business affairs with integrity and in compliance with applicable laws, rules and regulations. Businesses are required to engage qualified external advisors to prepare or review tax returns to be submitted to tax authorities. Both the Company’s own qualified tax employees and external advisers monitor compliance activities to ensure that the Company meets its tax reporting and payment obligations on a timely basis. The Company’s policies and practices are designed to identify and mitigate material tax risks.

Copeland Group: Statement of Tax Principles

Published September 2024 in relation to the Financial Year ending 30 September 2024

Business Rationale & Tax Planning

The location of the Company's business operations determines the jurisdiction of the Company's profits and consequently the appropriate amount of tax. Qualified external advisors are engaged to review inter-company pricing to ensure that interjurisdictional transactions are conducted at arms-length (transfer pricing). The Company engages qualified external advisors for material reorganizations to ensure they meet applicable tax laws and regulations.

Relationship with Tax Authorities

Interactions with tax authorities (Internal Revenue Service, HMRC and others) are done honestly, transparently and constructively. The Company's objective is to build strong working relationships with tax authorities that facilitate interaction in an open and collaborative manner to resolve any areas of ambiguity timely and responsibly.